Donald Jacob

Switzerland | 1963 | 2 children visual artist, landscape architect, urban-planner, ecologist,

Swiss contemporary artist Donald Jacob is a trained architect, ecologist and studied fine arts at the Basel School of Design. He works with a wide variety of media from the fields of photography, painting, sculpture, video and performance. Donald was one of the first to use modern computer technology and is considered a pioneer of the digital movement. Early in his career, he created interactive exhibitions by filming visitors or creating kinetic art that reacted to the movement of the viewer. He is an observer of the world - of transience - of interpersonal relationships and of the entire earthly community.
